Light where you least expect it: relief company Buzzi & Buzzi illuminates the interior of the new . by Alessandro Borghese restaurant, in Venice. Designed by architect Alfredo Canelli, 'AB – Il Lusso della Semplicità' became a source of inspiration for the leading Italian brand, which, together with furnishing experts Cierreesse, created the 16<sup>e</sup> century building its contemporary finesse. With light almost completely hidden in the surfaces of walls or suspended from the ceiling, the luminaires demonstrate the brand's versatility for expressive freedom.

Elegance and performance go hand in hand in the projects of the technical lighting Italian company as it puts itself at the service of architects and designers. Founded in 1990 in Pozzo d'Adda by Pietro Buzzi and Marialuisa Chiari, Buzzi & Buzzi has consolidated its presence in Italy and abroad with a complete proposal for all sectors, meeting customer requirements with a wide range of lighting fixtures. Several collections, both for indoor and outdoor use, distinguish the production of his renowned pieces. The Main Collection offers a very rich range of recessed, ceiling/wall and pendant products, while the enhanced Iron Collection focuses on single, 48V (with miniature dimensions) or 220V track or stand-alone projectors with specifications suitable for both the retail and domestic sector. or small commercial use, offering both versatility and adaptability to different contexts and designers.

Buzzi & Buzzi is also included in the exhibitors for the Light + Building Fall Edition 2022, the world's leading trade fair for lighting, electrical engineering, home and building automation. Held in Frankfurt am Main from October 2 to 6, 2022, the focus will be on intelligent and connected solutions, future-oriented technologies and current design trends. Among 1,500 participants, the Italian company marks its position as the market leader.

The company's compromise between high-tech design, aesthetics and performance is successfully reflected in Alessandro Borghese's 'AB – The luxury of simplicity', where NANO rail systems, executive lighting and rich decorations create a synthesis that only further complements the cultural heritage of the Venetian palazzo. The Milanese restaurant that rises around the city's canals was designed by architect Alfredo Canelli and decorated by Close to while Buzzi & Buzzi complete the project by uncovering it.

The wide range of facets of the company demonstrates the Cooker pendant lights do nothing to hide their signature shape. The direct light falls from the ceiling from a fully recessed housing to enhance the piano bar, while the white version, as seen above and below, contrasts strongly with the gold of the walls and the green of the marble inserts. The product emphasizes topicality and can be personalized with any paint in color and surface finish.

In addition, Buzzi & Buzzi opted for the bar for the combination between the Genius recessed spots and the Funnel pendant lamps. Genius is an incredibly powerful recessed spot in relation to the size of the emission hole, which is only 20 mm in diameter. The product, also present in the twin genius double version, adds a discreet and elegant integration into the architecture and almost disappears into the surface.

Sheet is the semi-recessed lamp that emerges from the folds of the wallpaper and with its characteristic clean cuts is reminiscent of the slanting stripes of the Argentine-Italian painter Lucio Fontana. Specifically studied to become an integral part of walls or false ceilings, the customization possibilities go beyond what you might expect. As can be seen in the restaurant, the interior surfaces near the light source are decorated with gold leaf: this not only gives a touch of sophistication, but also creates a soft and even warmer and more comfortable light.
