BUZZI & BUZZI

ILLUMINATES MILAN'S SPORT DINING SCENE

Buzzi & Buzzi has renewed its partnership with chef Alessandro Borghese and architect Alfredo Canelli. Following successful collaborations for AB il lusso della semplicità in both Milan and Venice, Buzzi & Buzzi has been tapped to light up another dining venture, ABKS Break Time, a Bistrot situated within Milan's new Padel Palace—a trendy padel hotspot featuring five indoor courts for year-round play, located in the Precotto district. Among its notable partners are Borghese himself, Diletta Leotta, Max Giusti, Gabriele Corsi, and Umberto Chiaramonte. As in previous projects, Buzzi & Buzzi has managed to create a casual and welcoming atmosphere while maintaining a cohesive style that links the different areas with a touch of overseas flair. ABKS Break Time aims to be a central meeting point not just for athletes but for the entire neighborhood, offering around sixty seats spread over two levels, including cozy sharing spots and a large social table at the entrance. The decor mixes industrial elements with natural colors, wood furnishings and greenery adorning some walls. The ground floor overlooks the padel courts, blending sport and cuisine seamlessly. Here, the recessed Polaris lights enhance the industrial exposed ceiling with suspended panels that form bright domes, creating a visually continuous and softly lit environment. Above the counter, Genius Curve echoes the rounded shapes of Polaris, providing discreet yet high-performing lighting. The connection between sports and culinary worlds is evident throughout both floors, with various sport-themed elements incorporated into the design. Ascending to the upper level, guests enter a relaxed atmosphere illuminated by Genius spotlights that mimic a starry sky. The area features low-key colors and minimalist furniture that complement the adjustable Rhino spotlights, which, with their retractable cylinders, add a dynamic touch to the various gathering spaces. For transitional and service areas, Basic Round and Idround recessed spotlights were chosen for their ability to blend discreetly into the architecture, maintaining an elegant and functional presence. Once again, Buzzi & Buzzi stands out for meeting not only the functional but also the aesthetic needs of their clients, delivering a visually satisfying final result. The fusion of physical activity and fine dining is seamlessly conveyed through a lighting design that enhances this blend of taste and sports.
